

Just imagine your class baptizing one of Europe's most advantageous environmental projects...

Europe is developing the "Global Monitoring for Environment and Security (GMES)": a system that will help us make the best decisions to manage our environment. The European Commission, the executive body of the European Union, needs your help to find an appropriate new name for it.

The whole winning class will be rewarded with an unforgettable hot-air balloon ride over their region! To participate, simply register on www.gmes-competition.info. You will then receive an information package with all the necessary details.

Registration is possible from May until end of June 2006. Proposals can be posted until end of October 2006. Please send any questions to info@gmes-competition.info. The questions should only be in English, French or German.

Join the competition and let your pupils impress us with their ideas!

The European Commission competition team

